Orland Wallops Midlothian 6 to 5

The Orland Park baseball team is a fast stepping aggregation and so demonstrated this fact last Sunday when they trimmed the Midlothian Aces, this victory making 12 straight games for Orland. The Orland team continued its winning streak by beating Midlothian 6 to 5. Ludwig was in rare form, allowing only 6 hits and fanning 14 and knocking in 3 runs. Davidson, Nicholai, and Anderson also shared the honors in supplying the punch for victory.

Seize Suspect In Tinley-Matteson Blackmail Case

The Cook County highway police at Homewood have arrested a young man of Homewood as a suspect in an extortion case in which blackmail letters were sent to two wealthy farmers demanding $1,200.00 from each on threat of death.

The farmers who received the death threat letters are Edward Meinheit of Matteson and Alfred Henke of Tinley Park.

They were instructed in the letters to drive their automobiles between the hours of 9 o'clock and mid-night in front of their farms and on a green light signal from another car to throw out the package containing the money.

Meinheit reported the letters to the county highway police and the search for the extortionist caused a curious mixup in which the farmer, Alfred Henke, mistook two policemen for the blackmailers when he went out to pay the $730 of the sum demanded.

Liuett, Robert Seiter of the county police assigned Policemen James Fleming and George Truesdale to watch the Meinheit home last Friday night. The policemen saw a sedan drive slowly past the Meinheit place and they ordered the driver to stop. The motorist asked the cops not to shoot and they were surprised when he handed out the package containing the $730 part of the extortion money, saying that was all the money he could get. The driver turned out to be Alfred Henke, one of the victims.

Editors Dine With Gov. L. L. Emmerson

Editor and Mrs. Wm. Semmler and Mr. and Mrs. Don Hall attended the Illinois State Fair at Springfield Saturday as guests of the Fair Association and also witnessed the Governor's Derby as guests of the Illinois Press Association.

In the evening Editor and Mrs. Semmler attended the banquet given at the Abraham Lincoln Hotel in Springfield in honor of Governor and Mr. Louis L. Emmerson. Over 400 editors from all parts of Illinois attended.

At the close of the banquet Governor Emmerson gave a very interesting address in which he referred to the newspapers of the state as the mirrors in which are reflected the life of the community, state and nation. He also made a plea for the continued support of his unemployment commission. He said in part:

"Present conditions indicate that it will be necessary to raise a fund against this winter, and I speak now for the support of you men in seeing that the necessity for assistance is presented to our people."

"I have wired the national relief commission that the men and women of Illinois may be depended upon to do their utmost to alleviate suffering within the state, until such time as a settlement of disturbing economic factors permits a return to orderly development of the nation's resources, and to that degree of prosperity which is the American standard."

"We have survived many crises in the one hundred and fifty years of our nation's history. Today, we are in the midst of another epoch of change, created by external conditions over which we had no control; and again the stability of government, and the faith of our people in themselves and their ability to cope with complex social problems, depends in no small degree upon the faithful reflection (continued on back page)

TINLEY WINS A DOUBLE GAME

The Tinley Park baseball team again slugged their way to a two victory last Sunday when behind the brilliant pitching of A. Devlin they won the first game 15 to 2 and with Breitbarth on the box they took the second game from a picked team 17 to 7.

The second game was played because of the failure of the Midlothian Aces to put in an appearance on the field after having scheduled the game. Tinley's record of the last few games has been so impressive that Midlothian is the third team to back out of scheduled games, Lansing, Ill., Washington Heights and Chicago Heights Hornes being the others. This speaks very well of the kind of baseball played by the home team and any who want to see some fine baseball should be on hand on Sunday at 3 p. m., when the game is called.

N. Simon is still keeping up his slugging getting 2 doubles and a triple in the second game in 5 times up at bat and 1 hit in two times with first game. E. Siebrandt got 4 hits in 5 times in the second game and 2 out of four trips in the second game. E. Kelley also got 5 hits in 8 times at bat.

Sunday, Sept. 6th the first game will be called at 1 p. m. against Mokena and at 3 p. m. Palos Park will furnish the opposition.

Labor day, Sept. 7 the first game will be with Oak Forest. This team a few weeks ago defeated Tinley in a pitchers battle 2 to 1. Tinley is all set to avenge this defeat and Frankfort will be on hand for the second game. Come on out and root for the team. Bring along the family and enjoy the afternoons. We need your support and you need the recreation, so let us see you at the game.

CHAPTER I

The Germans had a preponderance of 323,000 rifles March 21, 1918, and although this number had decreased they still had a superiority of about 200,000 May 27. July 15 this was changed and the allies then had the superiority by the same number. In other words, the Germans were relatively worse off by 523,000 rifles in July than in March.

This was accounted for almost entirely by the great increase in the numbers of Americans. The French and British had not been able to add to their strength but, on the contrary, they were being reduced faster than the Germans.

The German offensive south of Rheims, July 15-16, having been checked, the moment was favorable for an allied counteroffensive. The selection by the Germans of the Champagne sector and the eastern and southern faces of the Marne pocket on which to make their offensive was fortunate for the allies, as it favored the counterattack already planned.

We shall now see the reason for the concentration of several American divisions southwest of Soissons. Some of them were available for use in the main counterstroke, to be delivered by the French Tenth army under Mangin. The American First and Second divisions were hastily assembled to form the American Third corps under General Bullard. But his corps staff had not yet been fully organized and these divisions, by his direction, under discretionary authority given by me, became a part of the French Twentieth corps, commanded by General Berdoulat.

Form Spearhead of Attack.

This corps then was composed of these two divisions and the French First Moroccan division, which had a fine reputation, and was assigned to the most important position in the attack on the left center of the Tenth army. The three divisions mentioned had the honor of being the spearhead of the thrust against the vulnerable flank of the salient. The line of advance ran eastward over the commanding plateau just south of Soissons, and across the main road leading from that place to Chateau Thierry.

The First had recently been relieved from the Cantigny sector and was en route to a rest area. It was scattered throughout the Dammartin area, just north of Meaux, when it received orders July 13 to move by truck to the front. After a hurried departure the advance troops arrived at dawn the 16th at the forest of Retz (or forest of Villers-Cotterets) and during the night the division moved to the front of the forest. The night of July 17 it went forward over muddy and congested roads, the columns of infantry working their way to the front, where they arrived in the nick of time.

The Second division was at Montreuil-aux-Lions in reserve of the First corps, reconcepting, when the order came on the 14th to move by truck toward the front. Dawn July 17 found the infantry and machine-gun elements arriving at the forest of Villers-Cotterets. The night of the 17th the movement toward the front, through the forest, was made with extreme difficulty. The narrow roads became jammed, troops lost their direction and there was serious doubt whether they would be at their line of departure at the appointed hour of 4:35 a. m., the 18th.

Proceed Against Odds.

With most commendable energy and initiative the officers led their commands forward during the night, winding in and out through the almost inextricable snarls of wheeled vehicles. One of the battalions assigned to lead in the attack, though on the march most of the night, was forced to move on the run for the last few hundred yards, and just reached its place as the barrage started.

The Second division headquarters found itself July 16 with no knowledge of the terrain and little obtainable from any source. Harbord and his chief of staff, Col. Preston Brown, started for the front and accidentally ran into the headquarters of the Twentieth corps. They there found the directive for the attack, from which they issued the division's orders.

The country over which the Twentieth corps attacked consisted of a succession of wooded ravines that lay across the line of advance, with scarcely any roads leading toward the front. The enemy's main defenses along the ridges of the Soissons plateau were naturally strong, and with the added intrenchments the enemy evidently felt himself reasonably secure. It was harvest time and the ripening wheat that covered the rolling landscape gave excellent cover for the enemy's infantry and machine guns, but it also helped to hide our advance.

Enemy Caught by Surprise.

Without the usual preliminary artillery preparation, the assaulting battalions, accompanied by light tanks, plunged forward behind the barrage. The enemy was caught by surprise and the First and Second divisions, gallantly supported by the Moroccan division in the center, soon overran his forward positions and broke through the zone of his light artillery. Though constantly confronted by fresh enemy troops, this corps took the lead in the advance and its progress was most satisfactory. By noon it had captured half of the great plateau in its front, with many prisoners, and a little later forward elements reached the day's objective.

The Second division encountered strong opposition at Vierzy. In a determined effort launched after 6 p. m. the town was captured and a line overlooking the valley of the Crise was occupied. The First division had carried everything before it, capturing defended farm houses and other points where it met stiff resistance, finally taking Missy-aux-Bois and holding a front line slightly beyond that town. The line ran diagonally across the Paris-Soissons road.

The attack of the corps was resumed the morning of July 19, but during the night the German lines directly in front of Soissons had been heavily reinforced with machine guns and artillery. In their advance the French One Hundred Fifty-third division and the First division met with much resistance, the Second brigade of the First encountering fire of the enemy both from the front and the left flank. Tanks were sent to its assistance and with close artillery support the division was enabled slowly to gain ground, but at considerable cost.

The Second division, with the reserves of the first day in the lead, forged ahead to the Soissons-Chateau Thierry road but was compelled to withdraw to the vicinity of La Raperie. It finally established a line just west of Tigny, with the road under its guns. The division was relieved by the French Fifty-eighth division the night of the 19th, having advanced six and one-half miles, captured 3,000 prisoners and seventy-five guns, and sustained about 5,000 casualties.

First Division Makes Advance.

July 20 the First division continued its advance doggedly against a desperate stand by the Germans on the knoll in front of Berzy-le-Sec. The French had been ordered to take Berzy-le-Sec, but failed. In the afternoon Summerville directed that it be assaulted by his Second brigade, but the attempt did not succeed that day. Assisted by the skillful use of artillery and with consummate dash, under Brig. Gen. B. B. Buck, in the face of intense artillery and machine-gun fire, the Second brigade captured the town on the 21st. Meanwhile, the First brigade and the French Eighty-seventh division, which had relieved the Moroccans, had crossed the Soissons-Chateau Thierry highway and reached the Chateau de Buzancy. The line now ran parallel to the Crise, with Soissons commanded by our artillery.

The First division, throughout four days of constant fighting, had advanced nearly seven miles, taken 3,500 prisoners and sixty-eight guns from seven different German divisions em-

On the 18th even the most optimistic among us understood that all was lost. The history of the world was played out in three days."

CHAPTER II

American participation in the second Marne offensive, which began July 18, 1918, and turned the tide of war in favor of the allies, was not limited to the operations of the First and Second divisions. While this bitter contest was being waged for the possession of the crucial point near Soissons the troops around the rim of the salient had been steadily driving ahead.

The Fourth division (Cameron), less its artillery, fought at first with the French. The Seventh brigade was attached to the Second corps, French Sixth army, the Forty-seventh infantry in reserve, and the Thirty-ninth assigned to the French Thirty-third division.

In the attack of July 18 this regiment cleaned up the wood in its front, captured Noroy, and extended the line to the south. On the 18th the regiment went forward about two and one-half miles on a front 1,000 yards north of the Ourcq. It was relieved the morning of the 20th and went to the reserve.

The Eighth brigade was assigned to the French One Hundred Sixty-fourth division, the Fifty-ninth regiment in reserve. In the attack of the 18th, the Fifty-eighth regiment assisted in the capture of Hautevesnes and Courchamps, took Chevillon and made further substantial gains. The Fifty-ninth regiment was put in the front line during the night of July 18-19, relieving the Fifty-eighth, and on the 19th, advancing with the division, gained two miles. On the 20th, with two battalions of the Fifty-ninth in line, the advance was carried well to the east of Sommelans. The brigade was relieved from the front line July 21.

Twenty-sixth Division Participates.

Coincident with these advances on the 18th, the First corps (Liggett), serving with the French sixth army division and composed of our Twenty-sixth division and the French One Hundred Sixty-seventh division, also became a part of the movement. The Twenty-sixth division occupied the line it had taken over from the Second division July 10. The plan for the July 18 offensive contemplated a deep penetration south of Soissons by the French Tenth army, supported on the right by the French Sixth army, extending the attack as far south as Boursches.

The Fifty-second brigade, Twenty-sixth division, captured the villages of Torcy and Belleau, and one battalion reached the base of the dominating Hill 193. Elements of the brigade reached the railroad, but severe flank fire drove them to the starting point.

On the 19th the advance of the Twenty-sixth was contingent upon the success of the French One Hundred Sixty-seventh division on its left, but that division failed to take its objectives and the Twenty-sixth did not attack. On the 20th the One Hundred Sixty-seventh was held up again, exposing the left of the division to heavy flank fire and preventing more than a slight gain. Farther to the right the Twenty-sixth succeeded in taking Gonette farm, and got a foothold on Hill 190.

Reach New German Line.

When the attack began on the 21st it was found that the Germans had withdrawn the night before, and the Twenty-sixth moved forward with little or no opposition until it reached the new German lines at l'Hermitage-with the 18th, the Twenty-sixth division had progressed nearly eleven miles and had captured 250 prisoners and four pieces of artillery. Since its occupation of the sector July 10 it had suffered about 5,000 casualties. The division was relieved, together with the Fifty-sixth brigade, Twenty-eighth division, by the Eighty-fourth brigade, Forty-second division, which took over the sector on the 25th. The Eighty-fourth brigade, Forty-second division, replaced two French divisions, which were pinched out by the shortening of the line. On the 27th, the Forty-second division occupied the entire front of the First corps, about two miles in extent.

Enemy Fights Desperately.

The enemy's defeat in front of the Twentieth corps (American First and Second divisions and First Moroccan division) was the principal cause of the withdrawal of his armies, but he fought desperately from position to position and his retirement was being skillfully conducted to save men and material from capture.

In the counteroffensive of July 18 no operations were ordered for French or American troops east of Chateau Thierry, leaving them an opportunity to readjust their lines. On the 20th, patrols from the Third division discovered that the Germans had withdrawn across the Marne the night before and the division at once advanced its line to the river. The night of July 20th the Germans further withdrew to the line Charvres-Ridge, north of Mont St. Pere, connecting with their line of resistance in front of our First corps.

July 21 the Fifth brigade crossed the Marne, in pursuit, capturing Mont St. Pere and driving machine guns out of Charvres. The Sixth brigade waited for the bridge to be completed at Mezy and the morning of the 22nd one regiment crossed the river and captured Jaulgonne. The Germans were contesting every step, and while the First battalion of this regiment reached Le Charnel it was compelled to retire by successive positions to Jaulgonne.

On the 26th operations planned in co-operation with the French Thirty-ninth and the American Forty-second on its left were only partly successful. The Forty-second captured the strongly held Croix Rouge farm, but the French Thirty-ninth division could not advance. The leading battalions of the Fifth brigade entered Le Charnel, but not being able to debouch from the town they were withdrawn after dark. During the night the hard-pressed Germans retired to the Ourcq, leaving machine guns behind to delay our advance.

July 27 the French Thirty-ninth division took up the pursuit, followed by the Fifty-fifth brigade, Twenty-eighth division, which relieved the French Thirty-ninth that night at Courmont. The Fifth brigade, Third division, advanced on the right to protect this movement and occupied a line running southeast from Courmont through Villardelle. During the morning of the 28th, the Fifth brigade captured Roncheres, and the Twenty-eighth division reached the Ourcq, but was unable to hold its gains north of the river. On the 29th the Third division occupied an irregular line beyond Roncheres, but neither that unit nor the Twenty-eighth division on its left was able to make material progress against the Bois des Grimettes that day.

Third Division Relieved.

The Third division was relieved by the Thirty-second on the 30th and retired south of the Marne. It had taken Fagg, Jr., Chicago; Rogers Humphreys, Bloomington; Fred E. Gardner, Rochelle; Wallace Wright, East St. Louis. All are prominent aviators, four of them World war pilots. All airports, air schools, and air beacon lights must be licensed by this commission and be operated under its rules and regulations.

Warden Henry C. Hill, of the Joliet prison units, will soon be located in new quarters at Stateville which are now nearing completion.

A bulletin recently issued by the bureau of census, showing both state and county statistics, states there was a decrease in the number of farms in Illinois from 237,181 in 1920 and 255,601 in 1925 to 214,497 in 1930. Of the 214,497 farms in the state in 1930, 119,892 were operated by owners, 2,123 by managers, and 92,482 by tenants.

Sheep show entries for the state fair this year exceed all former records, 1,410 head having been entered, and it will be the most representative show ever held in the United States. Corriedales, sheep of long wool variety, are making their first appearance at the fair this year, coming here from Pennsylvania.

Quincy has been entertaining Illinois golfers in the first annual state tournament for the purpose of picking pro and amateur champions.

Sam H. Thompson, Illinois member of the federal farm board, in an address at the twentieth district farm bureau picnic at Old Salem Chautauque park, near Petersburg, claimed that "a great deal of misleading and even malicious propaganda is being spread" to discredit the farm board and that "farmers should understand that the real purpose back of this campaign is to block them in their efforts to organize their own marketing system."

Maj. Richard Swanson, who has been connected with the Sixth corps area headquarters at Chicago, has been appointed federal property disbursing officer by Adj. Gen. Carlos E. Black. Major Swanson will make his home in Springfield.

Through the efforts of the state sanitary water board and the department of conservation, considerable progress has been made in reducing the oil pollution of the Wabash river and its Illinois tributaries, and almost all traces of oil pollution have disappeared. The campaign to accomplish this was started last February when the state sanitary board called before it oil producers in Crawford, Lawrence, Clark, and Wabash counties, whose wastes were being dumped into the Wabash river. A program of river sanitation was worked out and investigations show that it has been adhered to by producers. This has stopped the destruction of fish life and fish breeding places and has restored the river to the public for recreational purposes.

At an average cost of 37 cents per test, the state division of animal industry tested 2,234,000 cattle for tuberculosis during the past biennium. The preceding biennium shows 1,970,722 tests at an average of 46 cents each. The saving of 19 per cent is attributed to the men making more tests per month.

Rural schools without library facilities may obtain collections of books for the use of their students from the library extension division, Springfield. Books for informational as well as recreational reading may be borrowed either singly or in collections, the size being determined by the school enrollment. The collections are sent either by express or parcel post, and the cost of shipping is the only expense incurred by the school. Applications for this service should be made to the division by the teacher, principal, or school director.

Buel Brake, of Mt. Sterling, has announced his withdrawal from the Democratic race for the state secretary nomination, giving as his reason a desire to help Judge William H. Dietrich, of Beardstown, Democratic candidate for governor, who lives in the adjoining county, Cass.

Newton Jenkins, of Chicago, will again seek the Republican nomination for United States senator, according to formal announcement made. His campaign is to open soon and a downstate tour is being planned.

Recent statistics show that suicide during 1930 reached the highest annual rate ever recorded in Illinois. The number of deaths from this cause reported last year was 1,328 against 1,087 in 1929 and a previous high record of 1,227. Nearly one-half of all the suicides occurred among men who had lived beyond fifty years of age.

A nation-wide campaign against "bootleg" gasoline, with Cook county, Ill., as the starting point, was opened recently by the gas tax evasion committee of six. Following an initial conference the committee asked Gov. Louis L. Emmerson for a hearing to present the campaign plan to him first and eventually to all law enforcement agents of Chicago, the county, and Illinois. The committee will conduct private investigations and report findings to the authorities. A plan for a national drive will be presented soon to the directors of the American Petroleum Institute.

A motion picture showing the mines of the state, the mining processes and activities of the miners in Springfield and other Illinois cities, is being sought by the Atlas Educational Film company, the object of which will be to sell Illinois coal to Illinois people. According to plans the picture would be made in both silent and talkie versions, the "silents" to be used before civic organizations, luncheon clubs, churches, and schools which are not equipped with sound devices. President John H. Walker, of District 12, U. M. W. of A., may present the matter for consideration at the October convention.

The Illinois National Guards marched in review recently at Rockford before Gov. Louis L. Emmerson, "Governor's day" being the climax of the annual encampment, and virtually every soldier at Camp Grant took part in the revisional review. In the review stand also were Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, Lieut. Gen. Milton J. Foreman, Brig. Gen. Abel Davis, and other official guests, including members of the general assembly. A brilliant night aerial demonstration was also given with search lights tracing high speed planes through the heavens.

Oren Coleman has been appointed as Warden H. C. Hill's first assistant having charge at Stateville and in his absence from the state or in case of disability or injury, will become the acting warden of both Stateville and the old prison on the outskirts of Joliet. Edward M. Stubblefield will be second assistant warden and will have charge of the old penitentiary.

At a meeting of the standardization board on prison products the possibility of manufacturing auto license plates and soap, as well as numerous other articles, at Illinois penal institutions was discussed. Studies of various articles that might be manufactured under the new prison labor law in addition to goods already manufactured have been made by the board. Machinery for making the license plates would cost about $100,000. Soap manufacture is considered of some importance since the state institutions use $175,000 worth of cleansing products annually. Under the new Illinois law, it will be imperative for the state and its political subdivisions to buy Illinois prison-made goods in cases where the state can furnish the desired articles.

Due to the controversy that has arisen over prevailing wage matters in connection with the recently passed law in regard to wages to be paid by contractors on state highway work, it was necessary to postpone the letting of contracts that was to have been held on August 18 until September.

A special course for training teachers for sight-saving classes in the public schools is being conducted at the University of Chicago this summer and 11 Illinois teachers are taking advantage of this highly interesting and worthwhile work. There are at present 36 classes in the state and it is hoped that four new ones will be opened in the fall in those cities where surveys made by the Illinois Society for Prevention of Blindness show sufficient need for them. Definite standards for promotion of this work were set up at the White House conference and it is the opinion of experts that the teachers of these handicapped children should have a thorough knowledge of anatomy, physiology and hygiene of the eye. National experts stated that the Illinois classes are up to the standard in every way and the citizens should be proud of the project.

Associated Bakers of Illinois will hold their 1932 convention in Springfield next April. About 400 bakers of the state are expected to be in attendance. William Harris, Springfield, is an executive of the organization.

played against it, and had about 7,200 casualties.

The thrust of the Twentieth corps was conducted with such magnificent dash and power that the enemy's position within the salient was rendered untenable. The dangerous character of the threat caused the crown prince to begin a general withdrawal from the Marne. This operation snatched the initiative from the enemy almost in an instant and from that moment he was on the defensive.

Our First and Second divisions, with the Moroccan division between them, had struck the decisive blow that turned the tide of the war. Petain said it could not have been done without our divisions.

On the other side the German chancellor, Von Hertling, said later: "We expected grave events in Paris for the end of July. That was on the 15th.

Epieds-Mont St. Pere, east of the Soissons-Chateau-Thierry highway. On the 22nd it captured Trugny and got a foothold in Epieds, but was forced by a strong German counterattack to retire to Bretuil wood. The Fifty-second brigade was also driven back to its starting point.

The attack renewed on the 23rd was successful, one regiment reaching the Epieds-Mont St. Pere road, but in the afternoon it was forced to retire. That night the Fifty-second brigade was replaced by the Fifty-sixth brigade, Twenty-eighth division. When the latter launched its attack the morning of the 24th, it was found that the enemy had withdrawn and he was not again encountered until the pursuers, including part of the Fifty-first brigade, Twenty-sixth division, reached Croix Rouge farm.

During its offensive action beginning a decisive part in stopping the last German offensive and had advanced ten miles through difficult country, stubbornly defended by the enemy. It had suffered casualties to the number of about 6,000 officers and men.

The Forty-second division, as we have seen, had come from the French Fourth army to the Marne salient and had relieved the Twenty-sixth division in the First corps. In the advance that followed it had gallantly captured Croix Rouge farm on the 26th, and on the following day had cleared the Forest de Fere, captured Villers-sur-Fere and had reached the Ourcq. July 28 the Forty-second established a line beyond the Ourcq and on the 29th the Fourth division, in support of the Forty-second division, captured Serget, while the latter took Seringes-et-Nesles.

MOKENA DEFEATS TIMM'S MOTOR SALES, 6 to 5

By Clifford Mahoney

Sunday, August 30th Mokena defeated Timm's Motor Sales at Highland Park, in Joliet. Excellent pitching and fielding helped to make this victory possible. Mokena made one run in the first inning with a hit by McGovney after McHugh had walked. One more run was scored by Mokena in the second when Martin hit a double and was driven in by Smith who also made a double. Timm's Motor made one run in the first inning when B. Swanson drove in Kochalka who had been given a base on balls. The score remained two to one in favor of Mokena until the first of the eighth. In this inning Mokena made three runs, two of which were home runs. Mokena scored one more run in the first of the ninth inning. Timm's Motor rallied in the last of the ninth inning and made four runs but couldn't quite catch up with Mokena which finished one run ahead of them.

WORTH

Edwin Teason pitched the Worth baseball team to a 7 to 1 victory over the Blue Island Athletics, at Athletic Park, last Sunday. The Blue Island team is rated as one of the strongest teams in this vicinity.

Worth scored three runs in the fifth, two in the sixth and one in each of the third and fourth innings. Blue Islands lone tally came in the third inning as the result of two hits and an error.

Teason pitched nice ball, and was backed with some fine fielding by his team mates, particularly to be mentioned was the work of Herbert Stewart who caught a remarkable game behind the bat, he also got a double and a single at bat.

Batting honors of the game go to Charley Beck of Worth, who collected two doubles and a single out of four times at bat, while Mueller of Blue Island got three singles out of his four trips to the plate.

Many Mysteries of Ocean Unsolved

Whirlpool That Spins Outward Latest Oddity

Washington.—Discovery of an outward spinning whirlpool in the Atlantic ocean is reported by a vessel of the coast and geodetic survey. While charting the Georges banks, 150 miles east Cape Cod, the survey vessel Hydrographer encountered the strange whirlpool, which was strong enough to throw the vessel off its course. The cause of the phenomenon is unknown, but further investigation will be made. It differs from other whirlpools known to navigators in that it spins outward instead of toward its center.

"An outward spinning whirlpool is another oddity added to the long list of unexplained mysteries of the sea," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society. "It is half in jest and half in awe that old tars refer to the bounding main as 'that old devil sea.' In olden days the sea was believed to be peopled with strange monsters which devoured both ships and men. Even today, with all the safeguards and comforts of modern travel, a ship voyage is not without its hazards. Mother ocean constantly plays new and unexpected tricks because man's knowledge of the sea, for all his centuries of study and experience, is extremely meager.

"Explorers and geographers who

Weds Real Prince

Alene McFarland, daughter of Mrs. Charles McFarland of New York and Weatherford, Texas, who, it is revealed, has become the bride of Prince Johann von Zu Lichtenstein, a member of the reigning house of the principality of Lichtenstein. The ceremony was performed at the church of Our Lady of Assumption in London. The couple will come to the United States for an indefinite stay.

have been sighing for new lands to conquer may find their best field, paradoxically, in the sea. When it is realized that nearly three-quarters of the surface of the globe consists of water, it is rather remarkable how little we know of the vast surface of the solid sphere which lies under this screen of liquid.

"Little wonder, then that man marvels at how much has been learned about the seas, the while he realizes that what he knows is much less than the proverbial drop in the bucket as compared with what remains a mystery.

"The most impressive thing about the sea is its shallowness as compared with the size of the earth, and its depth as compared with the height of the land. If one were to take a globe six feet in diameter and excavate the deepest trench of the ocean thereon, it would be a bare pin-scratch deep—about one-twentieth of an inch.

"Among the sea's unexplained mysteries are the origin and actions of storm waves, commonest of nautical phenomena. Often storm waves travel much faster than the storm itself, meaning the storm as a whole, and sometimes they break with great force on a short-line where conditions otherwise are very quiet and serene.

"There is a curious superstition, varying in various parts of the world, that every seventh, or every ninth, or every tenth wave is larger than the ones that precede it. Writers often take advantage of this belief, not supported by scientists, to illustrate definite periods or sequences in ideas or lives.

"Much is still to be learned about the vagaries of ocean currents. Vessels and debris caught in these natural sea lanes often play uncanny tricks."

Father Sage Says:
Other people's burdens may be a tax on us, but a man's good opinion of himself never gets too heavy for him to carry around with him.

Solves Hot Weather Church Problem

When it gets too hot for folks to go to church the church can now go to the people. Seven Baptist ministers of the Calumet region of northern Indiana put their heads together to solve the problem and devised this "traveling church" mounted on the chassis of an old seven-passenger car. The motorized church has a twelve-foot belfry containing a bell. The roof, thrown back, discloses a pulpit and an organ, and amplifiers with radio equipment make it possible for a great audience to hear the entire service. The church is 22 feet long, 8 feet wide, and has interior seating capacity for 12 persons.

Earnings for 184 Companies Show Gain

New York.—A distinctly better trend in earnings as second-quarter reports continue to appear is noted by Moody's Investors' service in an analysis based upon results announced by 184 large industrial companies, which show aggregate profits for the June quarter 35.6 per cent higher than in the preceding three months. The extra-seasonal character of this advance, the survey states, contrasts with a gain of only 5.1 per cent for the same corporations from the first to the second quarter of 1930.

Including 171 railroads and 46 utilities which have reported on a five-month basis, total net of 629 companies for the first half of this year was 44.9 per cent.

"Further reduction of operating costs doubtless contributed in large measure to improved second-quarter industrial earnings," Moody believes. "The picture is more shadowed when comparison is made with the same period in 1930, and a 38.2 per cent decrease is seen. Nevertheless the substantial average gain over the early months of the year indicates that business has been operating somewhat more profitably than many have realized."

Industrial groups which made the best contrast with 1930 on a half-year basis included 12 automobile companies, with a drop of 19.9 per cent; drugs, with a decrease of only 5.1 per cent, and biscuits, where earnings were off 6 per cent. Poorest results were found in the case of automobile accessories (with a decrease of 68.4 per cent), cement (66.3 per cent), machinery (71.7 per cent), steel and iron (88.2 per cent), petroleum (95.2 per cent) and copper (with a 1931 deficit for five companies).

Dress and Jacket Comes

Into Favor Among Women

A short-sleeved silk dress, plus a silk jacket is a uniform that American women en masse rise up and call blessed. Hardly a woman of any age or any stature can fail to look well in it. And it fits into our many-sided, many-temperamented life with perfect tact. We may have neglected to say that it is smart, but we have so many times extolled the smartness of jackets, we assume you will take this for granted.

Slot Typewriters Are

Used in Berlin Cafes

Berlin.—If you wish to type a letter in Berlin just drop into a cafe, deposit a coin in a slot, and use a typewriter. Public machines are being installed in public places of the German capital. For the equivalent of 2 cents one may type 1,000 letters or spaces, then another coin must be inserted for further service.

Red Shades Are Favored for Late Summer Wear

Red increases in popularity as the summer advances.

Red jackets, red straw or embroidered linen hats, red pocketbooks and shoes provide a gay dash at garden parties and even on the street. It comes out strongly, too, in evening costumes.

A yellow chiffon dress has a red-headed jacket reaching to the waistline. A great red flower splashed on the skirt and red satin slippers still further brighten it.

POTPOURRI

Origin of Tuning Fork

The tuning fork is the invention of John Shore, trumpeter for George I of England. Its pitch varies according to the thickness and length of its two steel prongs. The usual instrument sounds only one note, middle C or the A below it, although the German model has a slide on each prong which regulates the pitch.

Monument Cleaning

Begun Again in Rome

Rome, Italy.—The municipality of Rome has started the customary annual cleaning of the monuments and antiquities of the city from the plague of weeds which infests them. Weeds grow with extraordinary fertility in the cracks and crannies of the obelisks, statues and church facades here. As soon as the wind deposits a little dust into a likely crevice of some ancient monument, weeds begin to grow. The work of keeping the monuments clean from these growths costs the municipality many thousand lire a year.

Carried a Souvenir of 1899 Tornado

Tulsa, Okla.—For thirty-two years Pat Malloy unknowingly carried a souvenir of a tornado that swept Iowa back in 1899.

Malloy, then a fourteen-year-old youth, escaped from the Salix (Iowa) tornado with a fractured collar bone and two small scars on his back.

He had forgotten the scars until one of them became sore and a small lump formed on it. Physicians opened the lump and found a wedge of plate glass between the ribs.

Influence of Forests

Proved by Experiment

Forests influence the amount of moisture in the air as well as conserve the water in the ground. Humidity records taken by the Pacific Northwest forest experiment station in a Douglas fir forest before and after the trees were cut indicated a remarkable difference in atmospheric humidity, according to the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture.

In the forested area the relative humidity fell below 35 per cent in only one-third as many hours as in an open area nearby. After the forested tract was cut over, the atmosphere above it appeared to become almost as dry as that over the open space. The tests showed that the removal of the trees increased the number of hours during which the humidity was below 35 per cent by two and one-half times.

STAGE COACH
TALES

By E. C. TAYLOR

The Idol of Stage Coach Days

REDDING BUNTING, "Red" to everyone, was more widely known and had more friends than any other driver on the old National road. His entire service was the "Old Line," the National Road Stage company that did the largest share of the business along the famous highway of a century ago.

"Red" Bunting was 6 feet 3 inches tall in his stocking feet, and was straight as an arrow. He was of a reddish complexion, his features prominent and striking, his voice deep and sonorous. But he was not loquacious, and had a habit of munching. He was endowed with strong common sense—the term "horse sense" originated among the "Pike boys" of the National road and was applied to him—and he was affable, convivial and companionable.

This idol of boys and men alike along the National road was born in Fayette county, Pa. He was not only a famous driver, but also was a trusted stage agent, stage proprietor and tavern keeper. He once owned the Central hotel in Uniontown, Pa., and probably would have died a rich man had he not been a victim of despondency and depression when the railroads supplanted the old east-west highway.

During the Presidency of Martin Van Buren, it was deemed desirable by the administration leaders in Washington that one of the President's messages be spread speedily before the people of the country. Arrangements were made with the Stockton line to carry the message westward, as the Baltimore & Ohio railroad was not then in operation west of Frederick, Md.

Bunting, as agent for the stage coach line, went to Frederick to receive the message and convey it to Wheeling, W. Va. "Red" sat beside the relay of drivers the entire distance, 222 miles, although he did not handle the reins himself. The distance was covered in 23 hours and 30 minutes.

Changes of teams and drivers were made at the usual relay stations. Joseph Woolley drove the coach from Farmington to Uniontown, making sparks fly as the coach speeded down the long western slope of Laurel hill. Homer Westover drove from Uniontown to Brownsville, Pa., a distance of 12 miles, in 44 minutes.

Mail coaches in those days carried only three passengers. There was spirited bidding for the privilege of riding in the coaches directed by Bunting on this record ride. That was before they started. Two of the passengers lasted as far as Uniontown, and the third got out at Brownsville. That speed in a lumbering stage gave them too much of a shaking up. It didn't disturb Bunting at all.

This ride occurred before the telegraph wires extended west of Frederick. The Pittsburgh Gazette had arranged to get an early copy of the President's message, and had agreed to pay Robert L. Barry and Joseph P. McClelland, employees of the National Road Stage company, $50 for speedy delivery of the message at their office in Pittsburgh.

Brownsville was the distributing point for the United States mail at the time, and Barry and McClelland took the mail coach, the "Industry," famous along the route, at Uniontown and rode to Brownsville on it, to obtain the message and convey it to the Pittsburgh Gazette.

When the mail was opened, there was no copy of the message for the Gazette, and Barry and McClelland returned home disappointed, and the Gazette had to wait for the next mail.

In 1846, after the railroad was completed to Cumberland, Md., "Red" Bunting drove the great mail coach from Cumberland to Wheeling that carried the message of President Polk officially proclaiming war with Mexico. He left Cumberland at 2 a. m. and reached Uniontown at 8 a. m. He breakfasted there with the passengers at his own hotel—he owned the National house at the time—and then started off again. He reached Washington, Pa., at 11 a. m., and Wheeling at 2 p. m. He made the 131 miles in 12 hours.

"Red" was a firm friend and staunch admirer of Henry Clay, "father" of the National road, and Clay often stopped for days at "Red's" hotel in Uniontown. Bunting named one of his sons after the great Kentuckian.

Jewish Surnames

The American Hebrew says that Jewish surnames date only from 1812, when Hardenburg, the Austrian, devised a specious and ingenious form of tyranny by which to afflict the Jews. Since they had never had surnames and had preferred to remain without them in the thousands of years of their existence, Hardenburg saw a new means whereby to inflict discomfort upon the Jews. In this wholesale naming the two most common sources of names were the Bible and the occupation of the person.

Denote Time's Travel

The letter "M" stands for Meridian, the highest point attained by the sun in its daily course; hence, noon, or twelve o'clock daytime. A. M. stands for ante-meridian, or before meridian, which is morning, and P. M. stands for post-meridian—that is, after meridian, or afternoon.

Lesson for September 6

TURNING TO THE GENTILES

LESSON TEXT—Acts 13:13-52.
GOLDEN TEXT—For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldst be for salvation unto the ends of the earth.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Paul Preaching in Antioch.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Paul Preaching in Antioch.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Opening a New Field.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—A Light Unto the Gentiles.

I. Paul's Journey from Perga to Antioch (13:13-15).

From this time forward Paul, who hitherto was called Saul, takes the lead. His companions were Barnabas and John Mark. Leaving Cyprus they sailed northward to Perga, the seaport of Pamphylia.

1. Defection of John Mark (v. 13). From Perga, Mark for some reason went back. He later redeemed himself, and was ready to go again when the second missionary journey was begun, but Paul would not give consent (Acts 15: 38, 39). It is pleasing to note that before Paul's death he testified in Mark's favor (II Tim. 4:11).

2. In the synagogue at Antioch (vv. 14, 15). From Perga, Paul and Barnabas went to Antioch in Pisidia where they entered the synagogue on the Sabbath day. Though Paul was the apostle to the Gentiles, his order of ministry was to begin with the Jews.

II. Paul Preaching in the Synagogue (vv. 16-41).

After the usual reading of the Scriptures, in response to the invitation of the rulers, Paul delivered his first recorded sermon. In its analysis we find four parts:

1. Historical. (vv. 17-23). In this section we see how Paul in a conciliatory way led them gradually through a series of changes in which God had dealt graciously with them, finally giving them Jesus, his Son. He indicated these steps as follows: (a) God chose the fathers and exalted the people (v. 17). (b) He delivered them from Egyptian bondage and led them through the terrible wilderness (vv. 17, 18). (c) He destroyed seven nations in the Land of Canaan and gave to Israel their lands (v. 19). (d) He gave them judges as deliverers when distressed by surrounding nations (v. 20). (e) After they had selfishly chosen a king, God rejected the dynasty of Saul and chose David, a man after his own heart (vv. 21, 22). (f) Finally it was God who from David's seed raised up unto Israel a Savior, Jesus. This demanded proof which follows:

2. Apologetical (vv. 24-27). That this Jesus was of the seed of David and therefore the promised Messiah he proves by three lines of argument: (a) The testimony of John the Baptist (vv. 24, 25). (b) The prophecies of Scripture fulfilled in their rejection and crucifixion of Jesus (vv. 26-29). (c) His resurrection from the dead (vv. 30-37). Several passages of Scripture were cited as being fulfilled in the resurrection by means of which he was declared to be the Son of God with power. Having proved Jesus to be the seed of David, he proceeded to set down the doctrinal teachings growing out of it.

3. Doctrinal (vv. 38, 39). The great doctrine derived from this proof is justification by faith—the very marrow of the gospel. Observe: a. The ground of justification is the finished work of Jesus Christ. He took our place as a sinner that we might become sons (II Cor. 5:21). b. Who are justified? Those who believe in him. c. From what is one justified? All sins. The one who believes in Jesus is freely forgiven all sins.

4. Practical (vv. 40, 41). The application of this sermon was a warning lest the judgment spoken of by Habakkuk should fall upon them.

III. The Effect of the Sermon (vv. 42-52).

1. Many of the Jews and proselytes requested to hear these words again (vv. 42-49). Almost the whole city came to hear the Word of God the next Sabbath. This great crowd incited the jealousy of the Jews.

2. Open opposition (vv. 50, 51). The persecution became so violent that Paul and Barnabas were expelled from the city. This persecution was answered by Paul's rejection of them and his turning to the Gentiles.

3. The disciples filled with joy and with the Holy Ghost (v. 52). In spite of the bitter experiences occasioned by this opposition, they were filled with joy.

Through Gates of Forgiveness

Through the gates of forgiveness we enter a new world, out from darkness into light, out from coldness into warmth, out from evil into good, out from indifference into love, out from the illusion into the real.—Richard Whitwell.

God's Dews and Showers

God's sweet dew and showers of grace slide off the mountain of pride, and fall on the low valleys of humble hearts, and make them pleasant and fertile.—Leighton.

HEART OF JACKSON
SHOWN IN LETTERSReveal Intimate Feelings of Great President.

In the fifth volume of the "Correspondence of Andrew Jackson," published by the Carnegie Institution of Washington, it is remarked by Doctor Jameson in the preface that it is the family letters—clearly the "products of the President's unaided pen"—that represent the actual "quality, furnishings and functioning of his mind." The literary gifts and powers of expression of his advisers, manifest in some of his correspondence in matters of state, did not touch these letters, some 60 or 70 in number. No secretary revised their spelling and punctuation. They are as he wrote them with his own hand, and give us "attractive and affecting glimpses" of the weary, harassed President, of impaired health and lonely, "seeking consolation in the love of a family to whom he had endeared himself by every evidence of paternal consideration, gentleness and warm affection."

The volume begins with a letter dated January 2, 1833, to "My dear Sarah" (the wife of his adopted son) which finds him "left alone," for everybody had gone to hear Mr. Benton replying to Mr. Clay in the senate and Colonel Polk to Mr. McDuffie in the house. He sends a "breast pin" as a New Year's gift, having nothing better that could be conveyed by mail, with a kiss for his "dear little Rachel," his infant granddaughter, whom no succeeding letter fails to mention in an affectionate manner. On one occasion, ill himself—too ill to go to church—and seeking to get rid of his trouble by putting on a "medicated hare skin" for such complaints as "Astma * * * dyspepsia, &c.," he forgets his own pain in his delight that little Rachel is in improved health and has cut two teeth. But, he adds:

"Whilst we are thankful for the gift of this charming child let us not forget how thankful we ought to be to Him who gave her and how earnest we ought to supplicate a throne of grace for her preservation and that she may live to become an ornament to society, and a true disciple of her blessed saviour."

In every letter to his son, the father of Rachel, there is also the concern about practical affairs at Hermitage; the proper caring for the slaves, the planting, the saving of seed for the next year, the selling of cotton, the breeding of horses, and above all, the meeting of obligations. In the midst of his second term, being painfully ill and his life "uncertain," Jackson urges the son to shun "dissipation" and especially "intoxication which reduces the human being below that of a brute." But "nothing can be more disgraceful * * * than the charge truly made that he has promised to pay money at a day certain, and violating his promise." "Buy nothing on credit" was also a frequent injunction.

For the burning of Hermitage he imputed neglect to no one and met it as "an act of providence." "It was he that gave me the means to build it, and he has the right to destroy it and blessed be his name." And Jackson straightway sends orders for "Scantlin and Brick" with which to begin the repairs. But most striking of all is his "hasty and laconic reply" to give peace of mind to the grandmother of the writer of a letter:

"I was brought up a Presbyterian to which I have always adhered (though he did not join the church till his retirement to the 'shades of private life,' knowing that scoffers would say that he had done it for political effect). * * * Charity is the real basis of all religion. * * * We ought to consider all good Christians whose walks correspond with their profession, be him Presbyterian, Episcopalian, Baptist, Methodist or Roman Catholic. Let it be remembered by your grandmother that no established religion can exist under our glorious constitution."

He was too weak to copy the last letter that he wrote before the day that ended his "official career forever" and his next letter, written a few days later, makes clear that he has for the time being forgotten all else in his concern for his very sick little granddaughter, Rachel Jackson.—New York Times.

Deer's Odd Antics

Diving through a rear screen door, a small deer entered the home of Prof. John J. Martin, of Bangor (Maine) Theological seminary. The deer raided two or three of the downstairs rooms, including Doctor Martin's study, and a member of the family was compelled to seize it by one of its legs and drag it to the outdoors before it would depart.

Rural Hygiene

League of Nations experts have completed a project for recommendation to all nations of a standardized system of rural hygiene. Leaguers are convinced that one element in the present world-wide economic crisis is the necessity of keeping the health and productive capacity of rural workers up to that of their urban brothers. The project provides amongst other things one physician for every 2,000 persons, an auxiliary nursing and technical staff, with facilities in the smallest rural unit to render first aid and carry out prescriptions. The project is to be submitted to an international conference on rural hygiene for final adoption.

Says Animals Will Talk

That animals may learn to talk is the belief of Dr. Bastian Schmid of Germany, who has been studying photographs of the dog's bark and other sounds made by supposedly dumb beasts. He has found evidence that animals have the beginnings of words like those of human language.

Skeleton in Yale's "Closet"

Fifty years ago the late Othniel Marsh, famous geologist, discovered and dug from Wyoming's soil the huge skeleton of a beast believed to have lived more than 120,000,000 years ago. This skeleton, classified as that of a giant Brontosaurus—also called the "thunder saurian"—has just been assembled and placed on exhibition in the Peabody museum at Yale university. And what a stack of bones! From nose to tip of tail it measures 70 feet, stands 16 feet high and weighs more than 6 tons.

The Blooming Desert

The areas of the West which have been reclaimed by the government irrigation projects last year produced crops valued at $161,179,000. The work is still going on.

KNOW the manufacturer—his reputation and ability. Know if he has the advantages in buying, manufacturing, and distributing necessary to build better tires and sell them at lowest prices. Know if he puts his own name on every tire he makes and stands back of it with his guarantee and responsibility for service. These are important things to look for behind the price tag.

Don't be misled by the claims of mail order houses whose special brand tires are made by some unknown manufacturer as part of a miscellaneous assortment of production and sold to you without the manufacturer's name or guarantee. Buy on facts.

Drive in to the Firestone Service Dealer in your community and see cross-sections cut from Firestone Tires and special brand mail order tires. Make your own comparisons. See for yourself the Extra Values Firestone build into their tires and give you at no extra cost.

IN MEMORIAM

TRULL—Roland C. Trull. In sad and loving memory of our beloved husband and father who passed away one year ago, September 8.

My heart cannot tell what to say,
God only knows my heartache
For the loved one that was taken
